THE MERRIMACKAN '59

PUBLISHED BY THE SENIOR CLASS

MERRIMACK COLLEGE

NORTH ANDOVER, MASSACHUSETTS

Very Reverend Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A.

To Reverend Father McQuade, President of our College, this yearbook is gratefully dedicated.

This year marks the 25th Anniversary of Father McQuade's ordination to the priesthood. In the ensuing years he has devoted himself to the furtherance of education according to Catholic principles. His years of devoted service as teacher, administrator, and advisor have served to fix his memory in the hearts of all whom he has served. We shall remember our days at Merrimack with a fond recollection of Father McQuade's interest in his students. As Seniors we have come to realize ever more fully the responsibilities of the President of the college and to appreciate Father McQuade's essential part in the expansion of the college.

DEDICATION . . .

The Reverend Joseph J. Gildea, O.S.A., Ph.D., as Vice President, Dean of Faculty, and Director of Arts and Sciences, has won the hearts and respect of all who have met him. In directing academic policy, no professional or student problem is too unimportant for Father Gildea's personal and sympathetic attention. The faculty-administration relations and the problems of individual students, as well as the entire curriculum are managed by him with unbelievable patience and ability. Personifying all Christian virtue, his priestly wisdom has been an inspiration to students and faculty alike.

REVEREND JOSEPH J. GILDEA, O.S.A.

ADMINISTRATION

Cardinal Spellman and Cardinal Cushing, accompanied by the President Very Reverend Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., and the Provincial Very Reverend H. E. Greenlee, O.S.A., attend a commencement exercise at Merrimack.

The Reverend Thomas F. Walsh, O.S.A., The Very Reverend Paul M. Judson, O.S.A., The Very Reverend Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., The Very Reverend Henry E. Greenlee, O.S.A., Chairman; The Very Reverend Edward J. Carney, O.S.A., and the Very Reverend Henry B. Smith, O.S.A.

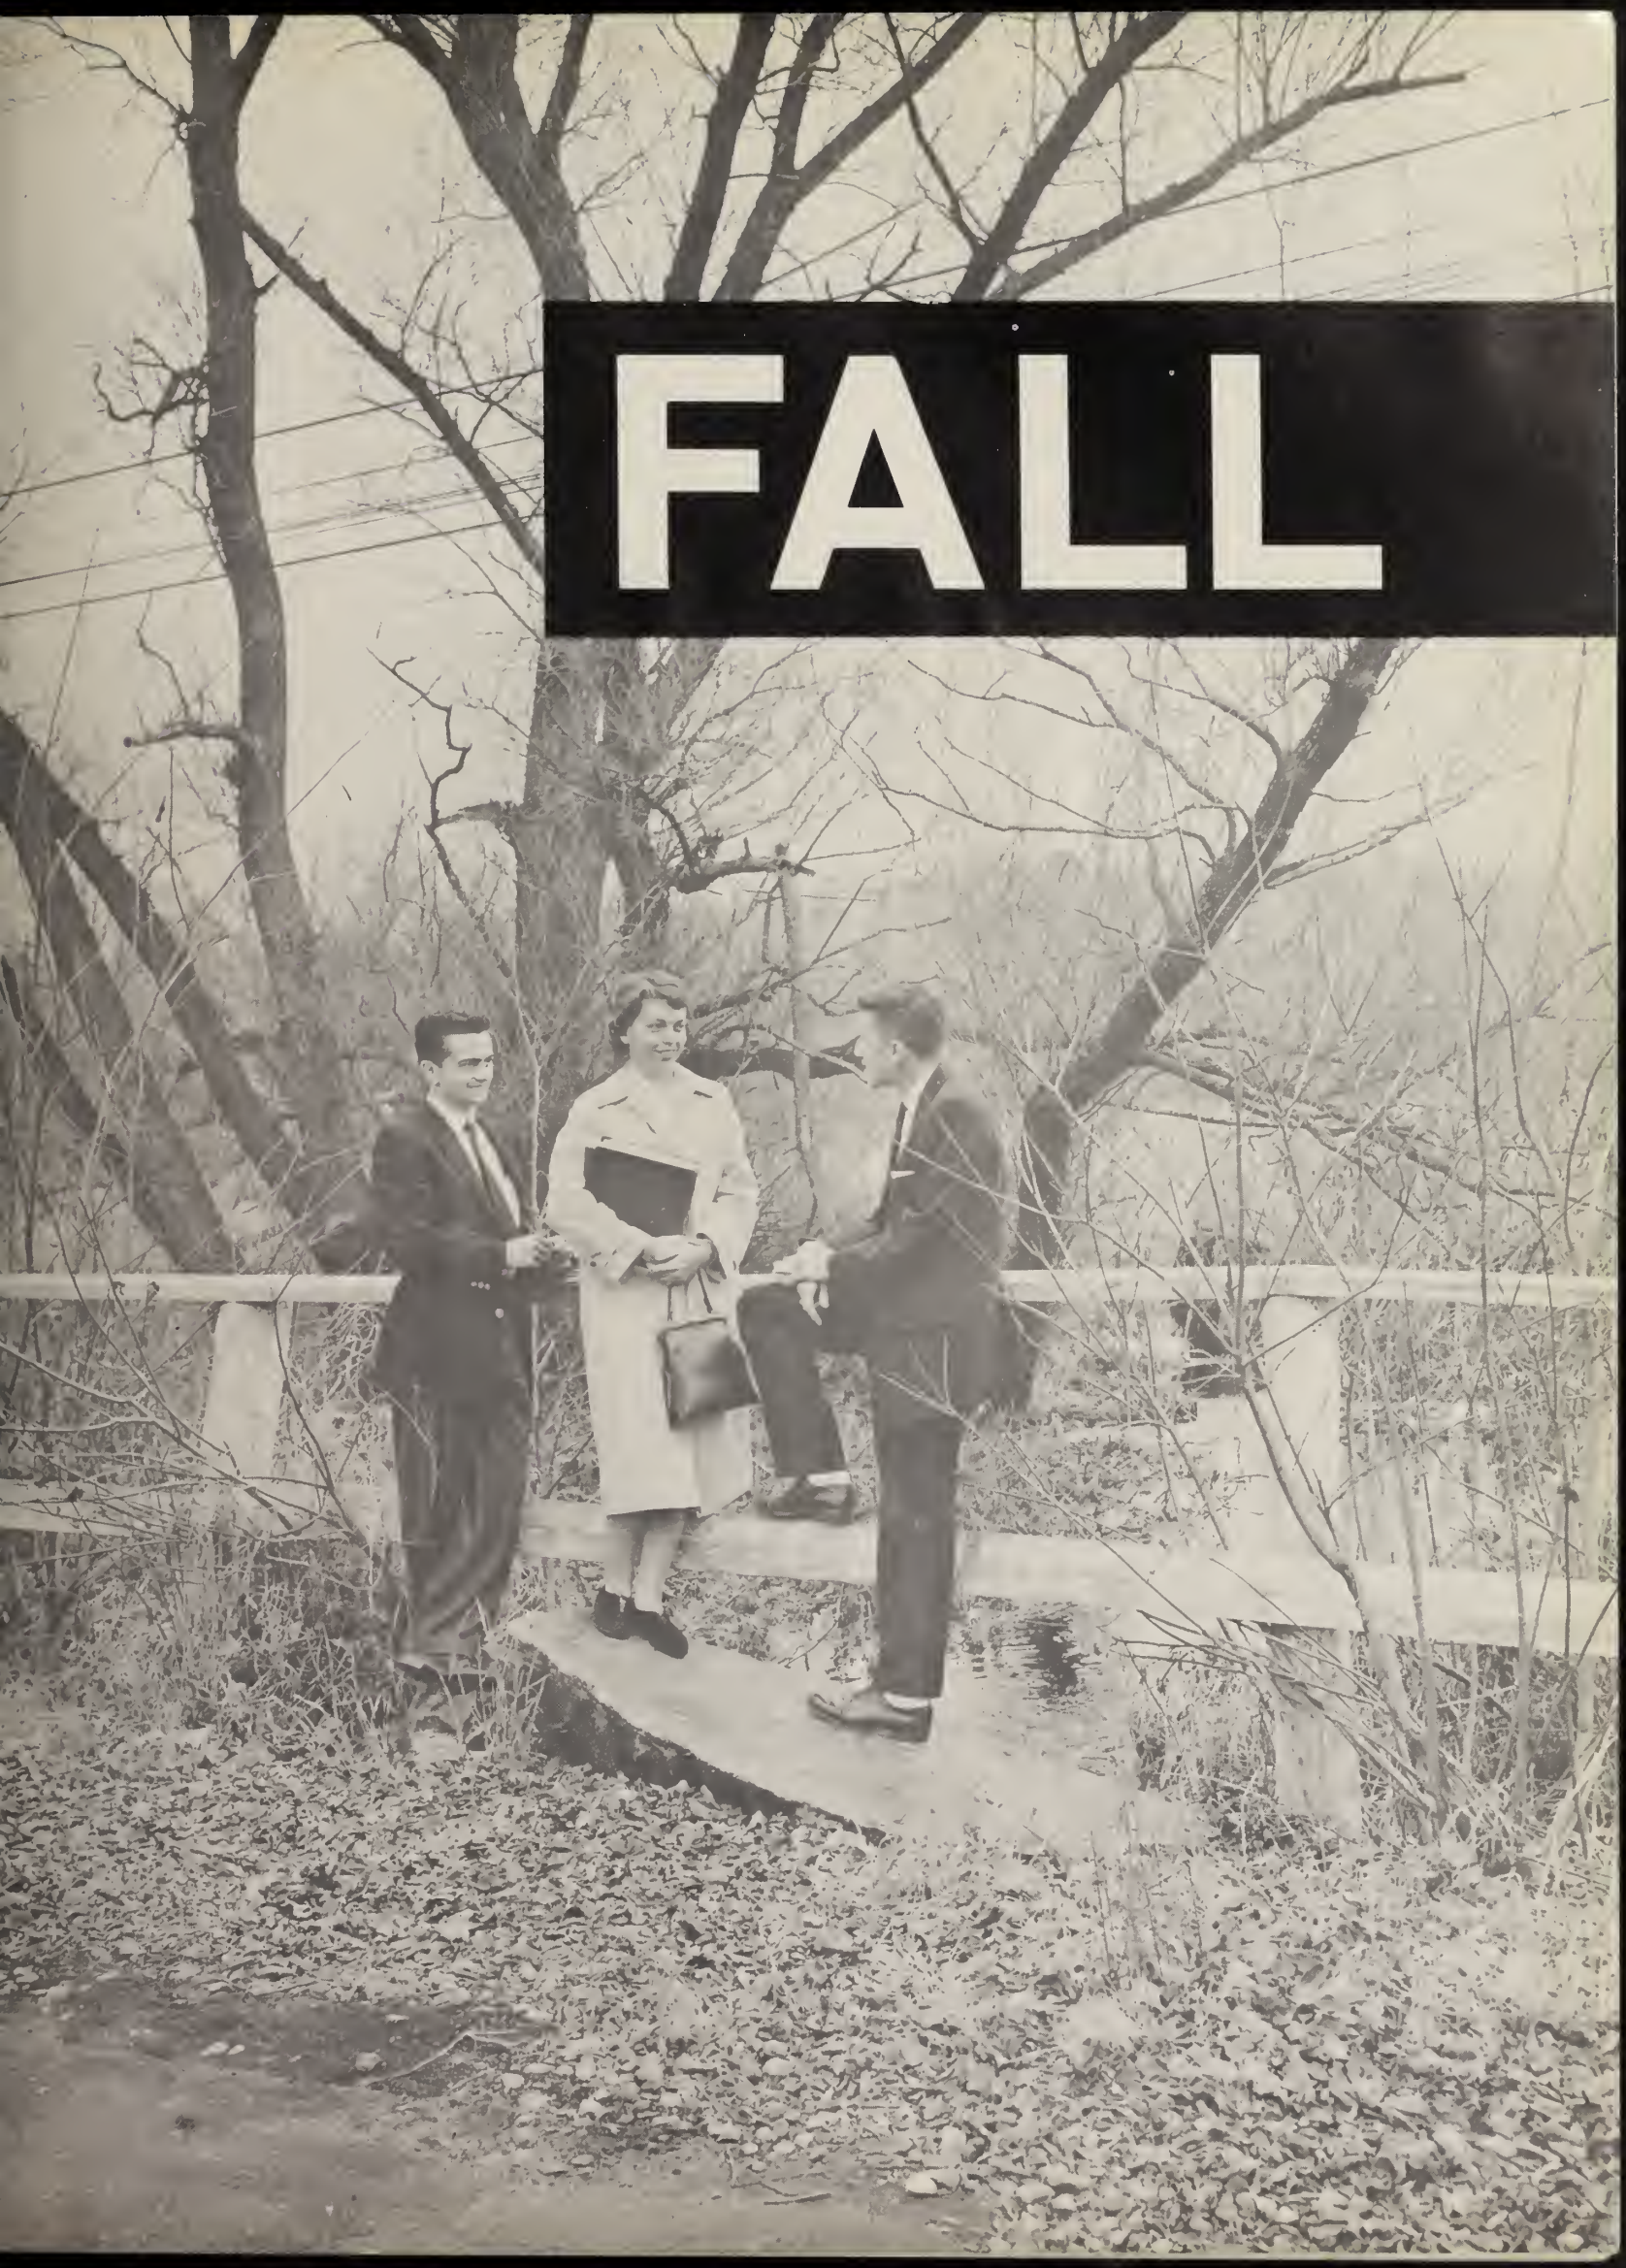
BOARD OF TRUSTEES

At Merrimack College the Board of Trustees directs important policies regarding college finances, the founding of scholarship funds and the appropriations for building programs and maintenance.

The Board members contribute valuable administrative experience and a wide understanding of academic problems. This efficient team is responsible for the successful expansion of Merrimack College.

The Very Reverend Henry E. Greenlee, O.S.A., S.T.D., Prior Provincial of the Province of Saint Thomas of Villanova capably guides Merrimack's growth and development as the Chairman of the Board of Trustees. Father Greenlee's foresight and administrative ability have clearly benefitted the progress of the college.

FALL



THE VERY REVEREND
ARTHUR B. MAXWELL, O.S.A., Litt.D.
Prior

There is an old cliché which seems appropriate to begin the story of Merrimack, "Necessity breeds invention." This trite phrase best explains the "Why?" of Merrimack College. With the influx of the countless young men who served in World War II and the generation which had grown up during it, there was a crying need for educational facilities. Although the demand was present, the supply was not; and so the germ of an idea was formed in the minds of some far-sighted Lawrence businessmen. Their idea was to erect a small college to service the educational needs of the Merrimack Valley.

After bringing their idea to Bishop Minihan, then secretary to his Eminence Cardinal Richard J. Cushing, they obtained his intercession with the Cardinal and the plan for the Augustinian College of the Merrimack Valley was approved. The site of the college was chosen and the Augustinian order was induced to come from Villanova to staff the proposed college. Under the inspired leadership of the Very Reverend Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., who was designated its president, Merrimack became a reality early in 1947.

From the barren, empty land of the previous year rose the first building—Guild Hall. Here, with an enrollment of one hundred and sixty-five male students, the morning of September 29, 1947 saw the advent of Merrimack's first academic year.

HISTORY OF MERRIMACK

One year to the day later, ground was broken for a science building that was to bear the name of the man who has done so much for Merrimack. Cushing Hall was ready for use by late 1949.

Three years more passed and fruitful years they were! Sullivan Hall, the liberal arts building, was completed by the summer of 1952. This filled a definite need for classroom space. It provided us with the convenience of a cafeteria and a bookstore. The science curriculum was expanded by the addition of modern biology laboratories.

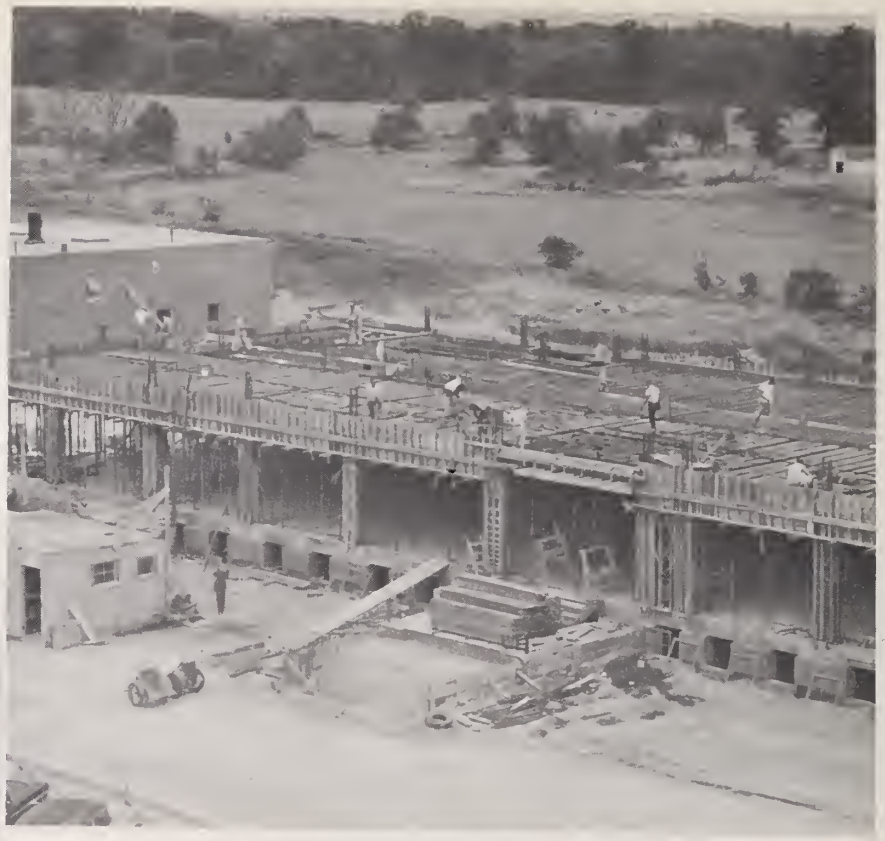
Also completed by the summer of 1952 was the administration building, Austin Hall. Living quarters for the clerical faculty, administrative offices, guidance and conference rooms, and a private chapel were established. A large portion of the first floor was devoted to the development of an extensive library.

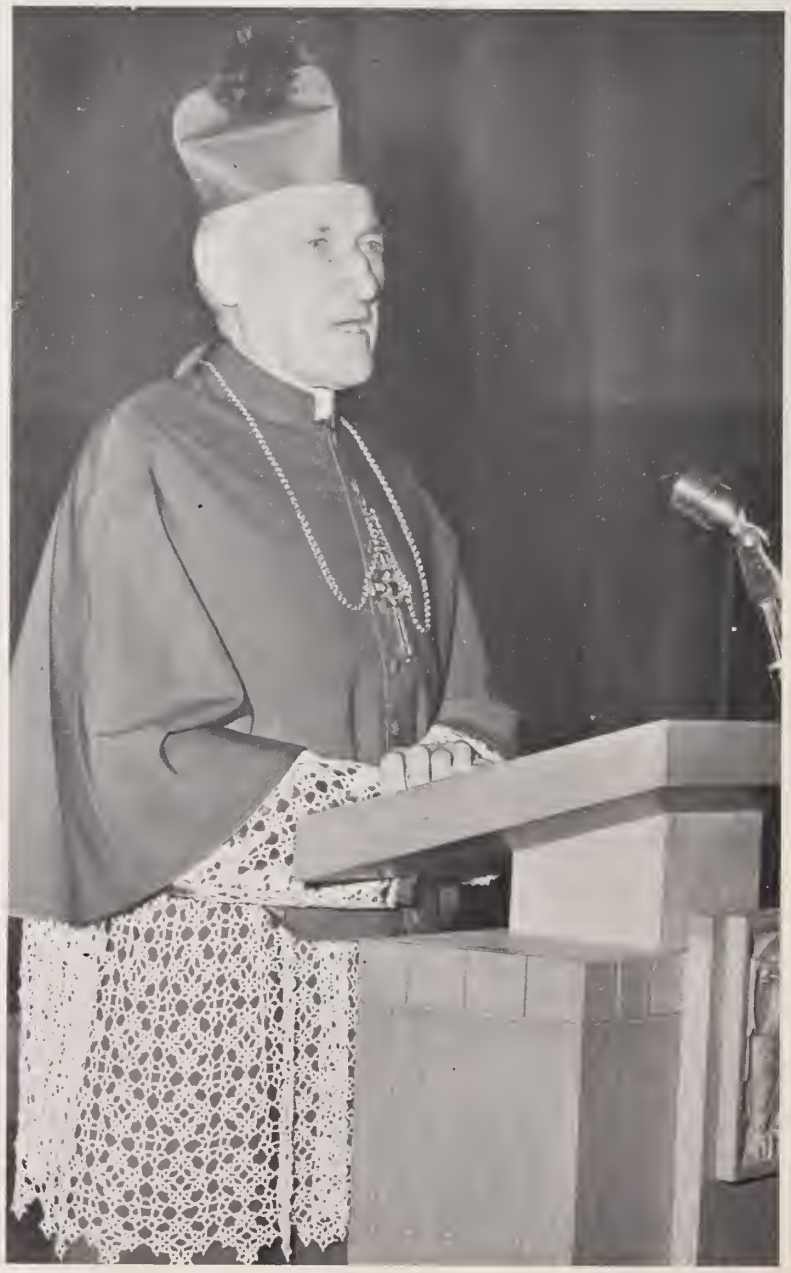
Still the picture was far from complete. The spiritual phase of student life, which is such an integral part of one's years at Merrimack, was greatly enhanced in the spring of 1955, when the Collegiate Church of Christ the Teacher was dedicated by Cardinal Richard J. Cushing.

One look at the campus today indicates to all that expansion still continues. This fall, O'Reilly Hall, the business administration building, opened. The large curtained classrooms, well appointed faculty rooms, and a comfortable student lounge meet once again the demands of an increasing enrollment.

What will be the limit to this physical expansion? The benefactors of Merrimack know no such word as limit. As the necessity for buildings increases, so too will the buildings. We have seen the Student Union building become an almost accomplished fact. It will be ready for occupancy in the fall of this year.

Not too far in the future, dormitories will accommodate the increasing number of students from outside the immediate area. Merrimack will not fall behind in meeting the educational demands of future generations; for, as she has so ably demonstrated, when the need is present, the facilities will be provided.





The growth of our college owes much to the interest and support of Richard Cardinal Cushing.

We grow in God's Power

Going hand in hand with the physical expansion of the school has been the expanding enrollment. The original enrollment of one hundred and sixty-five has been tripled twice over until now it consists of almost one thousand young men and women. Merrimack was made co-educational in 1949, thereby giving the school the opportunity to grow to its present size. To cope with the merging student body, the faculty has increased from its original fourteen members to the present number of sixty-eight.

The avenues of study which a student can pursue have developed broadly since the school's inception. Besides the classical Liberal Arts education, departments of engineering, chemistry, business administration, and secretarial science exist to meet the demands for specialization in present day society. The night division provides an extensive program for those who are unable to attend day sessions.

Who is responsible for this magnificent growth? It would be folly to attempt to enumerate those responsible. Certainly, however, our beloved Cardinal Cushing is most deserving of all the praise and thanks from all who have benefitted from the fruits of his support of Merrimack. The help of the Men of Merrimack and the Ladies of Merrimack has been all encompassing in its scope.

Support from the outside has not gone unrewarded inside the college portals. Faculty example and the growing tradition here at Merrimack have provided each student as he steps out into the world with the intellectual, and even more importantly, the spiritual equipment, to take his place as a leader of tomorrow with Christ, Himself, as his leader.

"He that learneth
is humble, but he that teacheth laboreth that he be not proud . . ."

St. Augustine.

FACULTY

LIBERAL ARTS

Education, in the tradition of the Liberal Arts, attempts to instill in the student the ability to recognize those qualities which mark the works of men as being distinct and superior in their fields, whether those fields be speculative or practical.

At Merrimack College, the curriculum in Liberal Arts is set up to develop this aptitude in all students.

SCIENCES

With the remarkable advancement of science in the twentieth century, today's graduate is faced with the necessity of procuring a fundamental knowledge of the principles governing the natural sciences. Physics, Chemistry, and Biology attempt to equip the individual with a more complete understanding of the specific problems so prevalent in scientific research. Science endeavors to develop the individual mind analytically enabling one to apply theory to practical experience. In the pursuit of scientific knowledge, the student broadens his scope for learning through the study of liberal subjects, therefore assuring the education of the "whole man".

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

A changing society demands a new breed of man, equipped to meet its challenges. The business man of today cannot rely solely upon his native talents, but must be developed by a formal education; one encompassing not only subjects particular to his field but also those that help him toward developing his personality, and an understanding of the new role he must fill in today's world.

ENGINEERING

Stimulating professional opportunities await the engineering graduate in this nuclear age. To face today's challenge, the engineer must be well endowed with analytical and inventive talents. Creative in dimension, the engineer achieves personal satisfaction from solving intricate problems.

Merrimack College's engineering program introduces the student to the arts and humanities in order to quicken his development. Thus, the graduate can make greater personal contributions in a broad area. With such a diversified education the Merrimack graduate has his thought processes sharpened to maximize his professional skills.

The Student Council presented the Cardinal with a check for his charities on behalf of the student body.

Student Council members assemble weekly to discuss current issues, here under the guidance of their advisor, Father Cullen.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Chairman Mary Feinen and Viee Chairman Joseph Day always find Father McQuade willing to assist with any student problems.

Comprised of five seniors, three juniors, and two sophomores, the Student Council does much to alleviate many administrative burdens in its weekly sessions. Ruling primarly on matters involving the interpretation and enforcement of its constitution, the Council carries out disciplinary regulations, supervises the Student Traffic Commission, and directs class election as well as extracurricular organizations. Thus the Student Council of Merrimack College is a democracy in action.

Traffie Commission members never refuse to listen to the plea of the student defendant before pronouncing judgment.

RELIGION

Our education here is only as so much accumulation of fact until the integrating and unifying force of our religion binds all loose ends and gives a relation between and a proportion among all that we have come to know. This truly is wisdom and with it we brush aside all that we are and shouldn't be to become more like Him in whose image we are created. How appropriate then is our motto: Through knowledge to wisdom. The practice of our Catholic faith accomplishes this transition and provides us with a daily source of grace in those duties which most become a Catholic college student.

The Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, the Supreme Act of our religion, provides the spiritual nourishment necessary for intellectual endeavor.

Our individual problems became part of Father Driscoll's daily work. There is always time for anyone requiring sound advice or for those who just want to "talk" things over."

The academic year was initiated by an inspiring retreat with Father Seary. His humor made us his friends. His humility made us re-evaluate ourselves; he did for us what we neglect to do on our own. We thank him sincerely.

Our representatives to the National Federation of Catholic College Students plan a workshop for the coming year.

"The front page," says Dave De Nuccio to his Associate Editors, is the selling page—it must have balance, it must be inviting, it must approach perfection!"

The traditional key-passing from 1958 Editor Dave De Nuccio to 1959 Editor Joe Nahil symbolizes the joy of a job well done and the promise of one to continue it.

THE WARRIOR IS OUT! The collegiate literary analysist (the caf crew) dig into the latest issue of the newspaper. Some will compliment it, some will sadistically criticize it, others will pass no comment—all will read it!

In 1957 the Warrior was in a growth and development period under the able direction of Bill McCann. Edited by Dave De Nuccio in 1958, it emerged from its one year rebuilding phase into a quality Catholic newspaper fostering the better principles of sound journalism. Vitalized by the acquisition of national and local advertising in conjunction with student financial aid, the Warrior, for the first time in its brief history, became a self-supporting publication.

Introduced during De Nuccio's reign were complete picture and non-staff editorial articles. The resultant enthusiasm exceeded description. The Warrior, besides claiming the nucleus of campus conversation, merited "First Honors" in collegiate newspaper evaluation by the Catholic Press Association.

THE CRITICAL ANALYSIS. The 1958 staff meets with the 1959 staff in order to avoid the latter's errors and note their achievements.

Joe Nahil briefs his staff on the necessity of originality.

The Merrimack WARRIOR

November heralded the traditional change in staff. The Warrior greeted its new Editor, Joe Nahil, and expanded its scope to horizons of national and international affairs. This was accomplished by a staff revampment which introduced a Feature Editor.

Upon mastering the fundamentals of newspapering, Nahil and his qualified staff produced more Warriors per semester than any of their predecessors.

A record of individual and group accomplishment, a document of memories, a sounding board of controversy, an outlet for creativeness—the Warrior is now all of these and more.

Part of the pleasure of dorm living is the warm atmosphere of the spontaneous get-togethers.

RESIDENT'S CLUB

At the core of Merrimack campus life is to be found that vital group called the "Ressie's". With a record membership drawn from out-of-country as well as from nearby areas this year's club functioned at a new maximum. The social season was highlighted by the vivid Halloween Dance and the annual Spring Banquet. But even more significant in resident activity is the unofficial functioning of life on campus—the pranks and problems of dorm life have made the year more memorable and have once more served to make the "Ressie's" truly a part of Merrimack life.

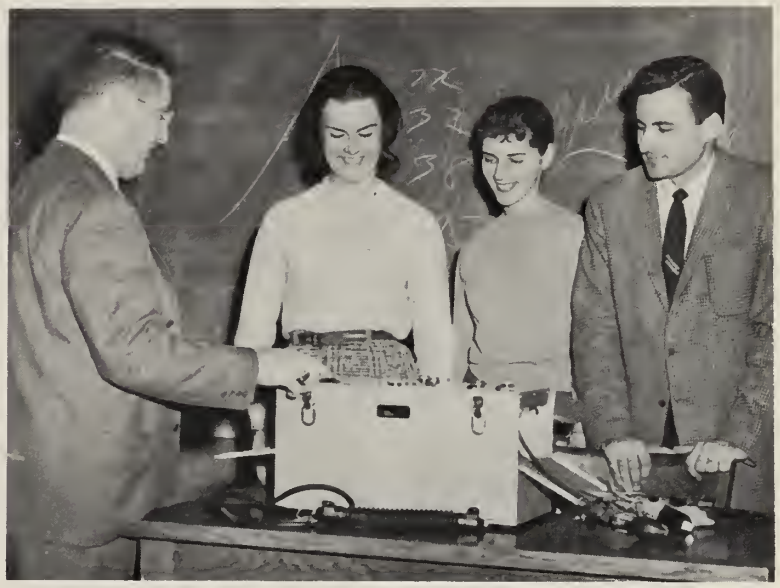
The Club officers, Jo, Dick and Nancy, smile anticipating the success of the October Dance.

"They're not too heavy for you, are they, Jim?" Ginny Douglas is welcomed to Cascia with the assistance of Elaine, Jane, Lynn, Nancy, and Jo.

A typical scene of an informal gathering as some of the "Ressie's" are seen lounging in the living room of Cascia Hall.

Members of the club eagerly await the announcement of the next meeting with special guest, Augustine Lawlor, who demonstrates and explains the operation and uses of the lie detector.

During the meeting the officers are captivated by Mr. Lawlor's humorous and information experiences with the workings of the polygraph. This is one example of the numerous speakers appearing before the Sociology Club.



One of the most active clubs on campus is the Sociology Club under the capable direction of Mr. Peterson. It exists to further the interest of the students in the various views and opinions on the current social problems in our society. The activities of the Sociology Club are highlighted by field trips to places of sociological interest and addresses by prominent persons well versed in matters concerning sociology.

SOCIOLOGY CLUB

In 1952, the Young Democrats of Merrimack College established themselves as a student organization designed to develop qualities of leadership among its members. Through the years, the club has grown in number, ideas, and strength. The club frequently sponsors prominent political speakers and aids them in their campaigns for office. By fostering true Democratic principles, the club hopes to produce sound-minded Catholic citizens.

On a warm September afternoon Senator Kennedy and his lovely wife visited briefly in historic Andover. This marked an eventful day for the young Democrats. They were warmly received with a hearty handshake from the senator.

A well-informed citizen; that is a "young dem" at a weekly informal meeting. The young Democrats listen happily as Jim reads of the Democratic landslide in the past November election.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS

Helen Comeau and Tom Cyrs discuss with Father Driscoll the future plans of the Cultural Activities Committee.

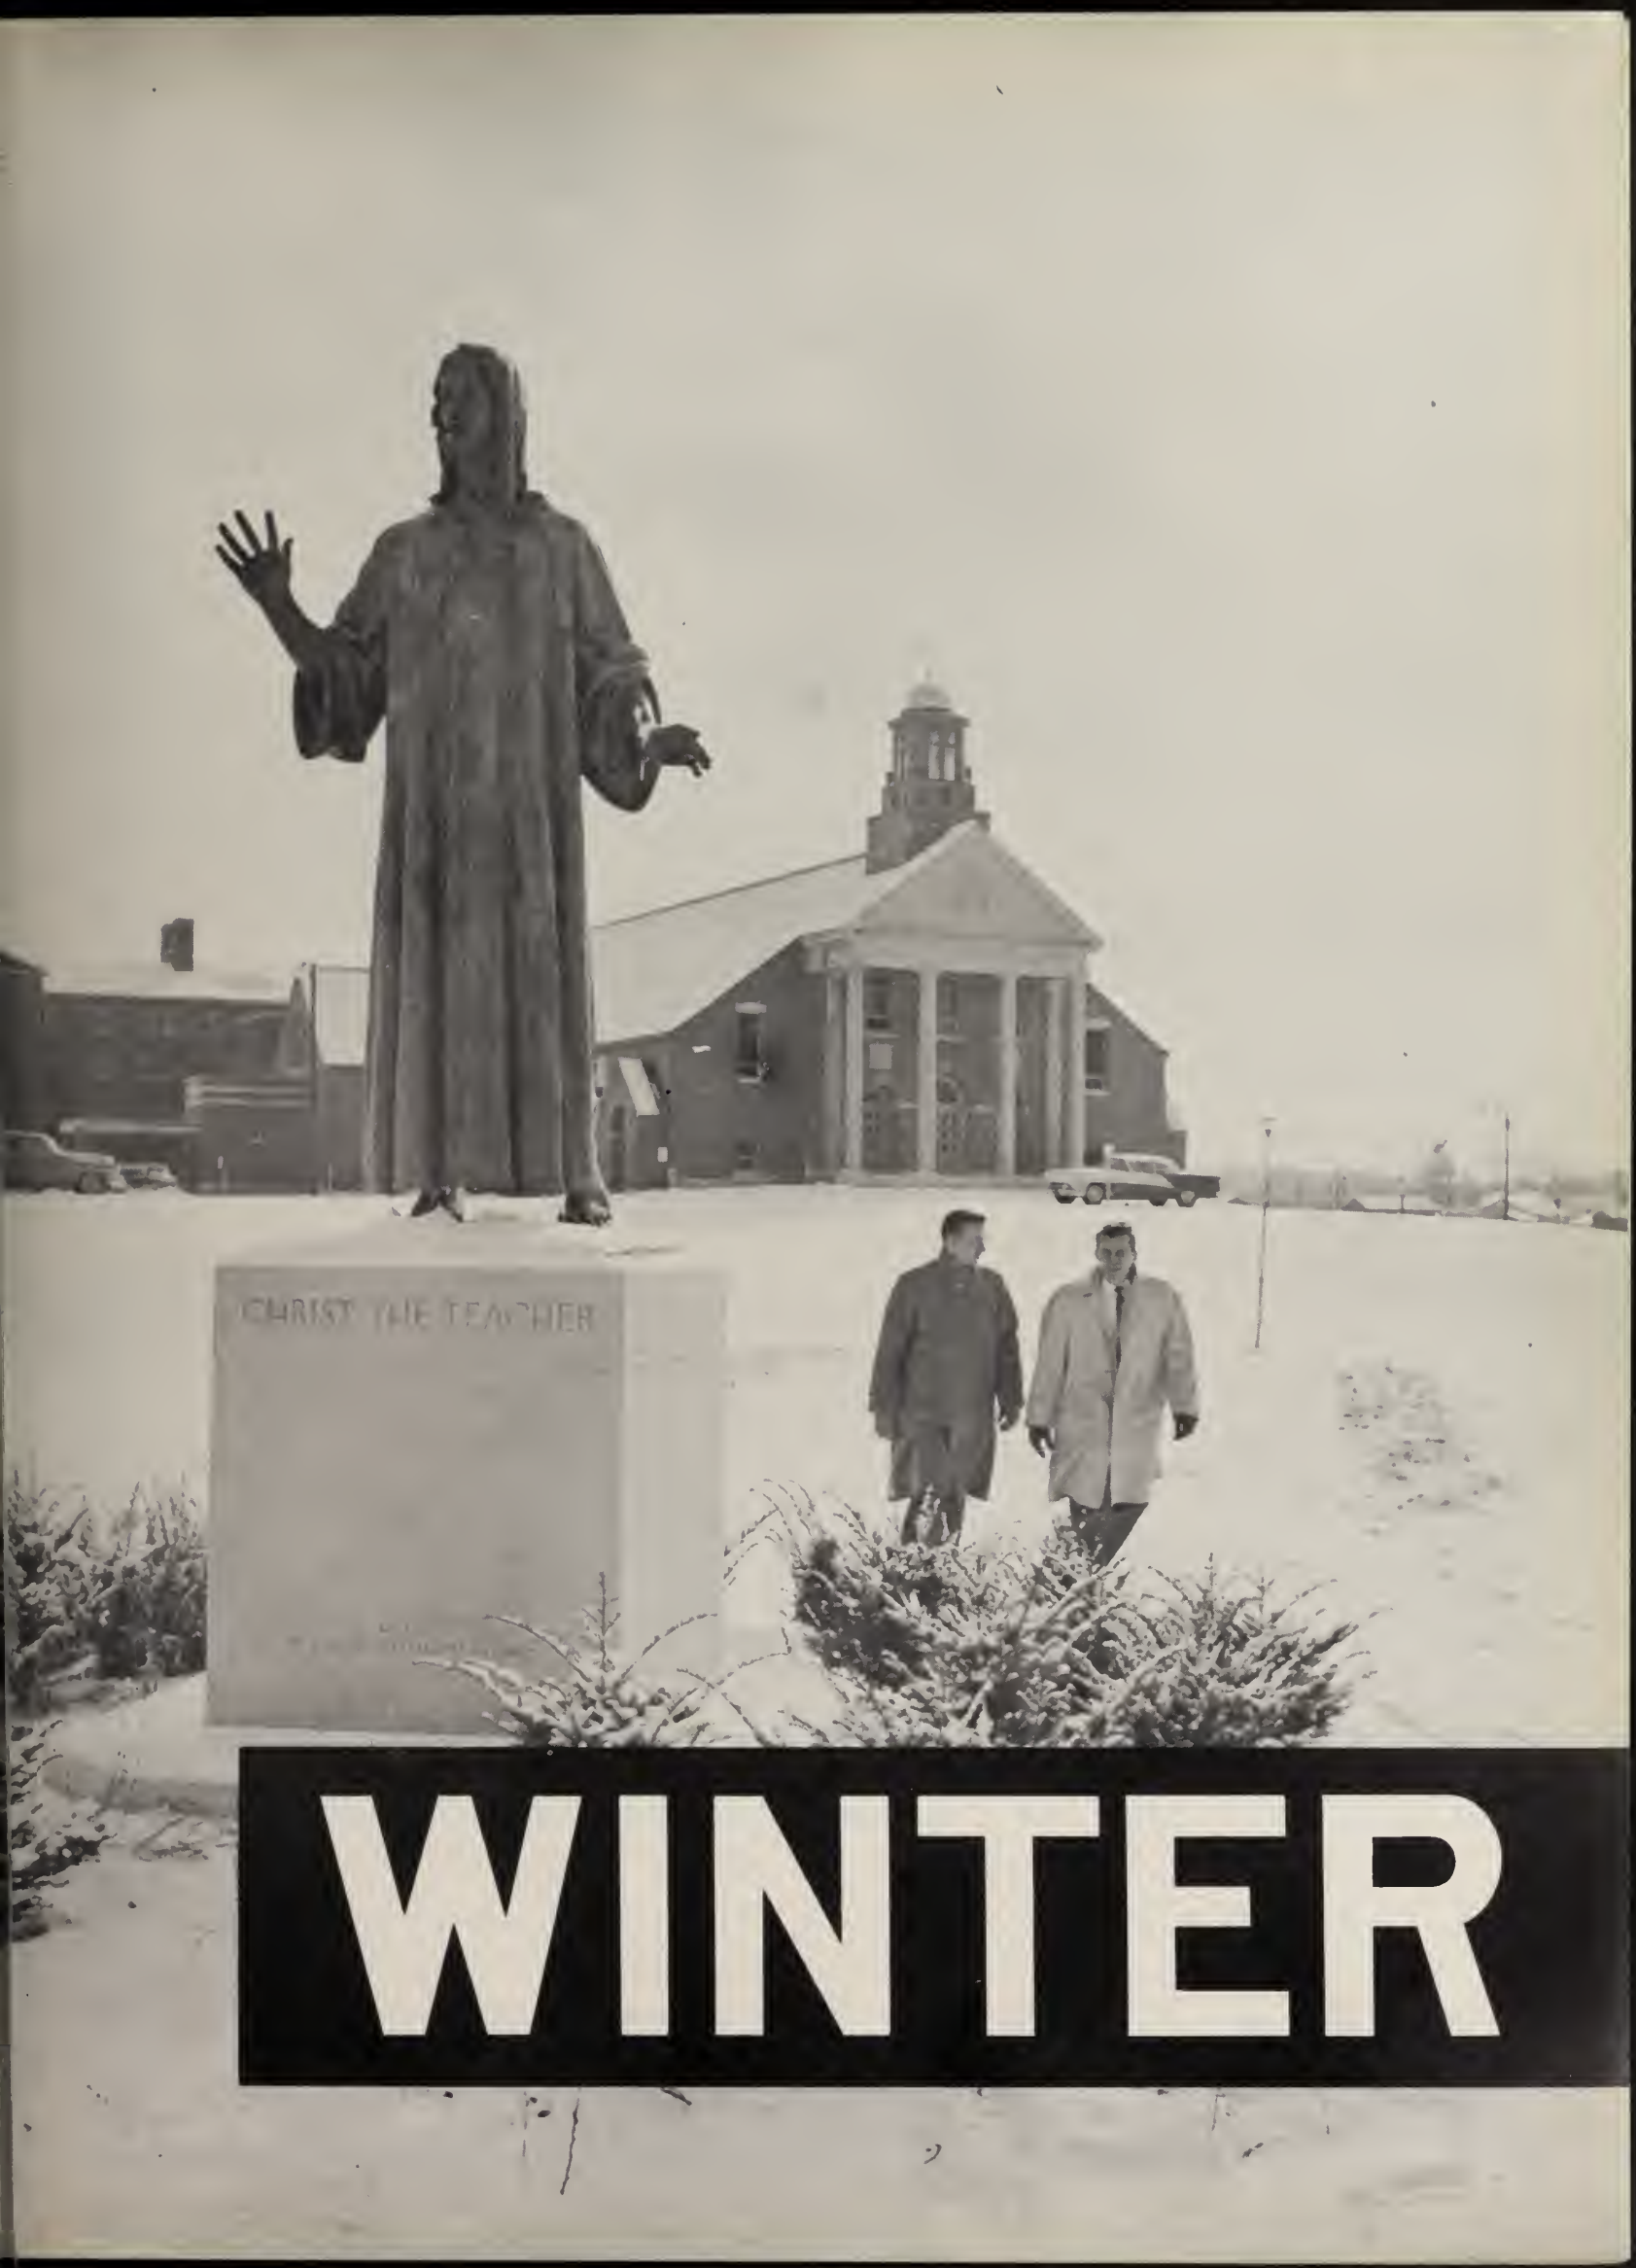
CULTURAL SOCIETY

The Cultural Activities Committee provides information on and encourages participation in the vast cultural resources of the area accessible to the Merrimack students. A trip to Handel's Messiah and an excursion to the opera are some of the opportunities afforded.

ACCOUNTING CLUB

The Accounting Club, one of the busiest societies on campus, gives its members various opportunities to acquaint themselves with the newest developments in their field. Supplementing the work of the classroom are the many and varied guest speakers. The year's activities are traditionally climaxed with a banquet in the Spring.

Mr. Grover leads the class down the avenue of business trends.



WINTER

Lively action on the court as the Warriors fight for a rebound. Jim McCarthy comes up with the ball.

An Assumption guard tries in vain to stop Warrior Captain Bob Lemay's attempt at scoring.

During a time out period Coach LaRochelle gives the team a few pointers.

Merrimack's basketball picture was considerably brightened with the arrival of Coach LaRochelle. Coming from North Andover High School after several highly successful seasons the new coach soon molded the team into a hard-playing group. An additional asset of Freshman height, coupled with the spirit, skill and determination of returning players brought the season to a highly successful finish. With the majority of the team returning, prospects for the future seem bright and we look forward to next year's successes.

A Lowell Tech player finds the going rough as he drives in for an attempted score. Then the Merrimack team rallies to thwart his attempt.

Although a Warrior strenuously tries to prevent it, a Lowell Tech player finally gains possession of the ball.

School spirit is in evidence as cheerleaders, players, faculty, and students lend their support to the basketball team.

The staunch Merrimack defense breaking up a pass pattern of the opposition.

A moment of suspense as the players wait for a basket or a possible rebound.

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL

Intramural basketball is one of the most popular extracurricular activities on campus. Every year, about 150 male students comprising 15 teams participate in this sport. Spirited rivalry runs at a high pitch throughout the season among the competing teams. Playoffs between the top four teams determine the intramural championship.

A long reach and jumping power are assets in rebounding.

ON-STAGERS

Reverend Francis X. Smith, O.S.A., Director of the Fall play, "Laura."

Laura is surrounded by the suspects of the puzzling murder and by the detectives attempting to solve it.

"The stage is in darkness except for a light from the radio-phonograph . . . Moonlight streams into the window. Mark McPherson is stretched in a chair which is turned toward a portrait of Laura, smoking a cigarette, listening to the music . . ."

On November 21, 22, and 23, the Merrimack College On-Stagers presented the Caspary-Sklar mystery "Laura." The unsung heroes of the Dramatic Society—the behind-the-scenes-crews and committees who produced a polished background, combined with the fine performances of the cast to add another trumph to the ever-increasing list of successes of the Director, Reverend Francis X. Smith, O.S.A.

The lounge in O'Reilly Hall is a perfect setting for the informal cameraderie of literary club meetings. The hardness of the floor is forgotten in the fascination of the play.

The officers of the Literary Club, Jane Barry, Tom Caffrey, Nancy Friel review a play which the club hopes to attend.

The Literary Club is organized under the direction of Father Joseph A. Flaherty to further the cultural and aesthetic appreciation of literature and the arts. The activities of the club include attendance at plays and concerts, with semi-monthly meetings emphasizing recordings of plays and poetry. Through its functioning the Literary Club hopes to develop an interest and an awareness of cultural activities outside the limits of our college environment.

LITERARY GUILD

Secretarial Club officers make plans for the next meeting. There are many details that must be discussed, especially those of their New York trip.

The Secretarial Science Club is designed to add to the education of the secretarial student. Charm and poise are acquired by participation in the annual Fashion Show sponsored by the club. Knowledge of the business world is obtained from business men and successful secretaries who are guests at the meetings. Membership in the Secretarial Science Club correlates technical knowledge gained in the classroom with social knowledge gained in club activity.

SECRETARIAL SOCIETY

Speed plus accuracy is obtained only through practice. Club members are continually striving to attain new goals.

SIGMA BETA KAPPA

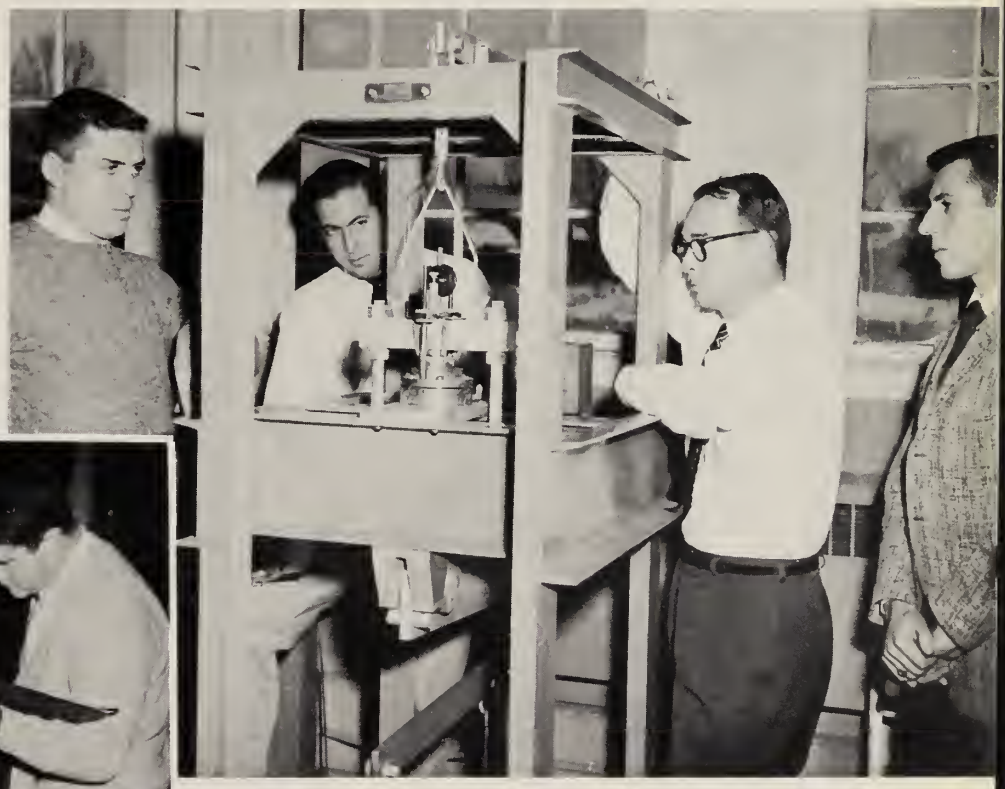
"Brothers" of the Sigma Beta Kappa, under the supervision of President Albert Wihry, hold one of their meetings to discuss future events.

Sigma Beta Kappa is a social fraternity stressing social life under Catholic aspects. The purpose of Sigma Beta Kappa is to establish a solid basis of true friendship among its members, and to foster the development of character and campus leadership by instilling a strong sense of Christian morality in its members.

ENGINEERS GUILD

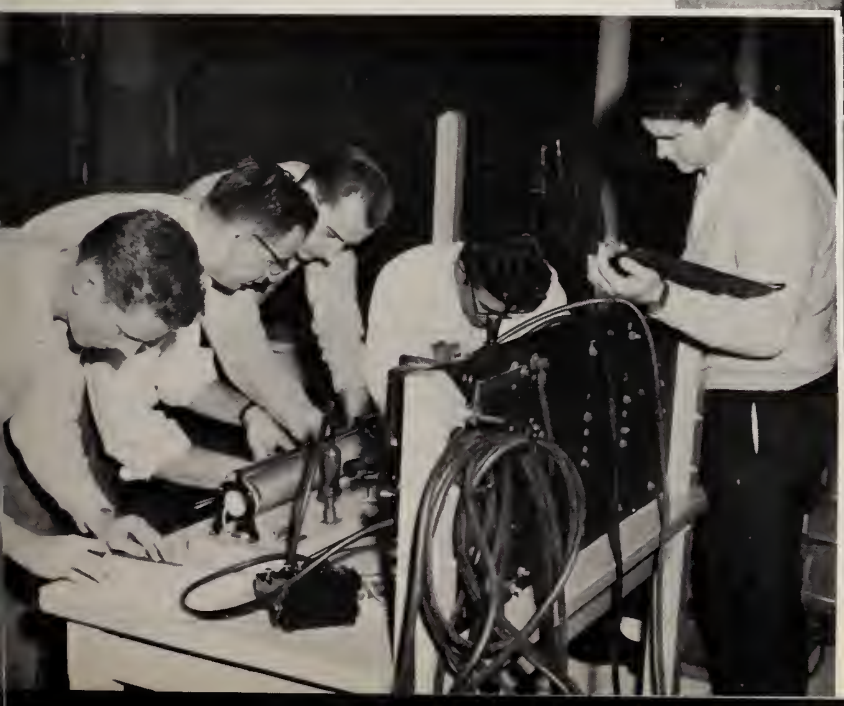
The Guild undertakes the task of familiarizing engineering students with various phases of their own particular fields, both curricular and social. This is achieved in part by a series of lectures given by well-known men in the engineering field.

One of the most prominent activities on campus is the annual Transit Trot which is sponsored by the Guild.



Engineering Guild members assist Professor Garrett in a demonstration of a consolidation test on a clay sample.

Electrical Engineers here combine theory and practice to meet the demands of a growing industry.



SKIING

Greeted by the snow and mountain air, these three Misses grin with anticipation.

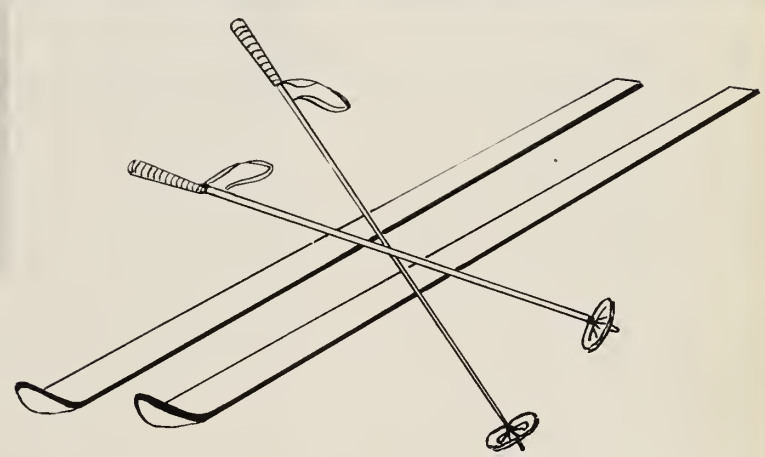
Reverend Thomas F. Walsh, O.S.A., moderator for the Ski-Mers, expresses a point of maneuvers to his ski-happy throng.

Up yonder someone beckons for me!

The traditional between-semesters Ski-trip at North Conway, New Hampshire offers the outdoor enthusiasts of Merrimack the insured challenge of powdered hills. This year, one-fifth of the entire student body answered the call from the snowy slopes, and equipped with complete skiing paraphernalia (gained from sundry sources), met the frosty winds and steep descents. For those with but little success on the white inclines, the atmosphere of rosy cheeks and spirited hospitality at Forest Glen Inn gives the Ski-Mers many moments to reminisce.

According to Father Walsh, that one over there looks pretty good.

Oh well, I was a little tired anyway.



One for the money!
Two for the show!
Three for enjoyment!
Four for the snow!

Veteran winger Pete Melchiono shoots for the goal as two opposing defensemen attempt to prevent success.

HOCKEY

A defenseman breaks up a scoring try as the play reverts to Merrimack's end of the ice.

Time out on the ice as the squad takes a well-deserved rest. Coach Reynolds capitalizes on these rest periods to give the boys a few playing tips.

Action is fast and furious as a Merrimack player attempts to dig out the puck from behind the cage.

As a major sport, hockey has been officially recognized for the past three years. Long before then, however, the pucks were flying. Each year produced a better team and along with it more enthusiasm for the sport. Presently, under the able direction of Coach Jim Reynolds, the team has shown a great deal of development.

As our school has grown, so have our sports. The hockey team is now capable of taking on stronger and more difficult opponents. Underclassmen comprise the major portion of the squad. This lays a foundation for the team's continued success in the immediate future. The increased popularity of hockey substantiates the fact that Merrimack is not exclusively a basketball school. Hockey counts at Merrimack—we are proud of our team.

An A. I. C. player breaks in as Goalie Dick Bresette splits to make a save. His attempt to pick up the rebound is foiled by the Merrimack defense.

FRESHMEN

New faces, new people, new horizons—the world of the freshman is an adventurous one, filled with the drama of everyday living. The adjustments to be made on a scholastic level, the acquisition of a new social life, indoctrination into the sober world of Catholic adulthood, are the beginnings of a miraculous process which kindle youth into creativity and knowledge into wisdom. Spanning the chasm of worlds to be conquered, the freshman student has nowhere to look but forward.

After the worry and confusion of the Freshman year, the Sophomore year presents a relaxed and confident face. The Orientation Committee acquaints the Freshman with the difficulties of college life. The Orientation Dance celebrates the end of the orientation period and is the chief social function of the Sophomore year.

JUNIORS

Junior year descends like a storm on the underclassmen who suddenly find themselves engulfed in the waves of decision and responsibility. As Juniors, they must meet this challenge and solve not only their own problems but those which confront their class and their college. This year is also representative of a fork in the road; the Junior must choose his major field. The culmination of the Junior year is the picturesque pageant of Junior Week—the result of hard work, effort, and co-operation.

SPRING

TENNIS TEAM

With the advent of new tennis facilities on campus, many students have found hours of pleasant relaxation in this challenging game. From among the more experienced and enthusiastic of the group, a spirited team has been selected. The reward of the grueling work of the game and the long hours of practice beforehand is their winning record of 6-2. More than ever the Tennis team has been well represented, enjoying one of its best seasons.

BUSINESS CLUB

Aims and Activities of the Club

The general aim of the Business Club is to provide for the business student a realistic understanding of the business field as a supplement to class work. General meetings in which debates and discussions take place on industrial problems. Dinner meetings are held to which leading men in the business field are invited to speak on current trends. The highlight of the year's activities is the Annual American Marketing Association Conference held on the campus of one of the affiliated member colleges. Following the panel discussions and the conference dinner, the Hutchinson Memorial Awards are presented to seniors from each member college for excellence in the field of Marketing.

JUNIOR WEEK

From all directions of the campus, members of the Junior Class converge on the Chapel to attend the celebration of the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass. Following this introduction, we move forward into Junior Week. Mass Day, the first day of Junior Week, represents the first and basic element of our college life—our faith.

Class rings are blessed in a ceremony symbolic of the spiritual band between the student, the college, and the Church.

MERRIMACKAN STAFF

Initial planning for this year's Merrimackan began last spring when the various committees were formed and a theme chosen. Once the idea of the four seasons was decided upon work went ahead; pictures and write-ups flowed in and the yearbook gradually took shape. Under the competent direction of Father Fenton, our moderator, and with the untiring efforts of our editors, deadlines were somehow met and the yearbook went into publication.

It is our belief that the 1959 Merrimackan depicts the deeds of our class as well as perpetuates the ideals of our Alma Mater.

The photography staff under Howie Goodrow must decide which pictures best catch both the work and the fun of our four years. Expert photography makes this a difficult task.

Much paperwork has to be completed and many hours spent before the Merrimackan can be a success.

History editor Jim Devine shares the satisfaction in work well done with co-editors Pat and Roy.

The executive staff of the Merrimackan listens attentively as the moderator, Father Fenton, outlines the duties for the forthcoming yearbook.

To the editors and their associates unqualified praise should be given for their executive supervision and planning of the entire production of this Merrimackan. We are also deeply indebted to each member of the staff who untiringly sacrificed his time and energies; without these individual efforts this book could not have been the composite it is.

Here the entire staff performs the various functions that make the yearbook a unified whole.

Joanne and Bob happily enter the Winter Wonderland scene of Merrimaek's Senior Prom.

Amid the scenic backgrounnd of a log cabin and pine trees, couples enjoy a relaxing moment.

SENIOR

The charm of a winter waterfall and surrounding wildlife appeal to Annette and Jim.

Jack Kelly and his date dance to the music of Geoffrey Carleton and his orchestra.

Our lovely Queen—Joanne Murtagh.

The success of the evening is registered on the faces of the class officers, committeemen and their dates as they lead the traditional Grand March.

PROM

One of the highlights of the evening was the popular Conga dance.

GRADUATION

In his valedictory address, William McCann offers the love and appreciation of the class to their parents for the many sacrifices and hardships they have endured for them, and to their Alma Mater for giving them the priceless treasure of wisdom.

Traditionally Cardinal Cushing and Father McQuade award the diplomas to the graduating class, and extend to them their sincere wishes for further success.

With the solemn pace of this eighth commencement recessional, 168 young men and women took one step further away from the gay labors of their collegiate life, towards the more complex living of the working world. The irrepressible desires of self assertion and independence seem to be ever more insistent for satisfaction; but now they have been tempered by a deeper sensitivity to life, and awareness of their fellow man which only a Catholic education can give. This was not something planted overnight, but deeply seeded within them from the day they entered Merrimack College.

On the knoll beside the building which bears his name, Cardinal Cushing consecrates the new statue of Our Lady.
